Family Rosary Crusade

ROCKYFORD. — From Sept. 4 to Oct. 23, eighteen archdioceses, dioceses and vicariates of western Canada and Alaska will take part in a Family Rosary Crusade. Last year this crusade was successfully conducted in the province of Saskatchewan.

The present crusade, largest of any held to date, will reach approximately 500,000 Catholics.

Speaking at the first organization meeting in Calgary, Bishop Carroll said, "It is not a military expedition. It is not a campaign for politics, commerce or money, but for the restoration of Christ in our homes and in our nation."

The organizer of the Family Rosary Crusade is Rev. Father Patrick Peyton, a member of the Holy Cross Fathers. As a young man, Father Peyton was struck down with a very serious and what seemed to be an incurable disease. His recovery he attributes to an answer to prayer. He prayed to the Mother of God and she helped him to be restored to health.

To thank her for this favor, Father Peyton is dedicating his life to putting into homes the Family Rosary.

Although organized and sponsored by the bishops of the west under Father Peyton's directions, everyone — Catholics and non-Catholics — are being asked to participate. Catholics will be asked to pledge themselves to the recitation of the Family Rosary; non-Catholics are asked to offer a daily prayer to help get the world out of its present trouble and unhappiness.

Everyone wants peace in the world, in the home and in his own heart. The daily practice of humble, sincere prayer will restore this longed-for peace.

The Family Crusade slogan is: "The family that prays together—stays together." When you see this sign on cars in your district you will know its significance.

A rally will be held in Calgary on the evening of Sept. 14. Another rally will be held in Drumheller Sunday afternoon, Sept. 18.

BEISEKER. — On his return trip from Sylvan Lake, where he was engaged for the summer, Paul Perry and his band stopped off in Beiseker to play for a dance. It was no better attended than when he played here in the summer on his way up to the lake.

Lions Club Hands Large Cheque to Beiseker Memorial Hall Board

BEISEKER. — This eagerness to serve, to be useful, to give of yourself.—That is where Lionism gets its strength. For nothing unites men more closely than the sameness of purpose insofar as that purpose is inspired by high ideals and aims.

These words were spoken by a member of one of the Lions clubs and in these words he expressed the ideals of all Lions, and we can say they express the ideals of the Beiseker Lions club, for its members found that something was wanted in their community and they got to work and with that sameness of purpose, they are now realizing the results of unselfish service to their community in accomplishing, in what appeared to be an impossible task, the financing and building of the Beiseker and District Memorial Hall.

As a result of the Beiseker Lions club activities, Lion Secretary-Treasurer Ken Wright handed a cheque for $3,365.84 to the Beiseker and District Memorial Hall board. Lion members can well be proud of this accomplishment and in the knowledge that their community is proud of them; and that it is from clubs such as theirs that Lionism gets its strength.

Congratulations, Lion members, but we cannot rest on past glory, there is still a volume of work to be done, and so to this and let us pledge ourselves to the activities that are before us in the future.

Federal Provincial Affairs
Minister Greatly Needed

Ottawa contemplates a Minister of Provincial Affairs. This not only seems a logical extension of liaison in government—the provinces have ministers of municipal affairs—but also it will serve an eminent purpose if it helps smooth over federal-provincial relations which have been assuming evermore threatening proportions in recent years.

Had not the war overshadowed its importance and robbed it of its high value, the Rowell-Sirois Commission Report might have become one of the truly important documents in our constitutional history. It is not only readable but approaches its problem in masterly fashion.

Undoubtedly the governments have absorbed some of its conclusions, and the federal government has indicated it intended to approach solutions on the general lines advocated, but it is now dated to the point where its recommendations could only be adopted piecemeal.

Time has shown that the Canadian Constitution (the British North America Act) did not settle to a nicety the respective powers of province and central government. Studied in relation to contemporary history, it is beyond question that the original intention was to establish a strong central government. Sir John A. Macdonald undoubtedly was of this persuasion, and the Imperial Government as well.

At the outset, appeals to Privy Council tended to strengthen federal power. It could be contended, not without reason, that as long as a threat from the United States remained, the Imperial Government favored a strong central administration. When this threat diminished, then patently disappeared, a strong federal government became a bit of a thorn in the side of the United Kingdom government.

And appeals to the Privy Council reflect this change in attitude. Decisions now began to lean toward the provinces.

In times of emergency, such as the depression, public opinion—if nothing else—tended to be partial to federalism. This, of course, became even more accentuated during war.

With responsibilities beginning to shift to lower levels in peace, demand for more responsibility for the provinces was bound to arise. Before it breaks into open squabbles, it would be just as well, if machinery were established to sort out the points of difference.

Now that appeals to the Privy Council have been abolished, the Supreme Court of Canada becomes arbitrator on dominion-provincial rights. With no remote reflection on the court intended, as it is, in effect, a federal body, the dominion might be placed in an unenviable position in an acrimonious dispute with the provinces.

No one hopes, nor anticipates, this will arise, but it would certainly be a step in the right direction if something could be done to try and eliminate disputes at the source, and a sound basis of co-operation established, no matter what political party were in power, federally or provincially.

Margaret Munnerlyn Mitchell Marsh, 49, author of the world-famous novel, "Gone With the Wind," died as the result of injuries received when she was run over by an automobile. The driver had nine previous traffic convictions. In the hands of some persons an automobile can be as dangerous as a loaded revolver.

An Alberta farm machinery dealer ran into a new excuse for a farmer's preference for old-time methods. Noticing a farmer hoeing potatoes, he asked: "Why don't you use a cultivator?"

"It's easier to quit this way," replied the farmer.

Sucker Luck Held
Even After Death

By JAY LLOYD

Many persons have told me how they narrowly missed making a fortune in the sensational stock market rise of Quemont, but my favorite among allegedly true stories concerns Andrew Stewart. The reason is not simply because Andrew did make a fortune but also because it was one of the very rare occasions when a sucker was not a sucker in the end solely through being a sucker in the first place.

As part of a deal, a stock and bond salesman named Malcolm Macdonald took in 5,000 shares of a penny stock. He tried to sell it through the brokerage house he represented, but found that, while 1½¢ were asked, there was no bid.

During his rounds he tried to sell Andrew Stewart some oil royalties. One of the little ironies of the story is that the oil royalties would also have made him a fortune in this particular case, which cannot be said of oil royalties in general, as many an investor has discovered.

"WORTHLESS STUFF"

"I'm not buying any more of that worthless stuff," declared Andrew. "And as for that Catholic—" Andrew as a good Carleton county Orangeman, shuddered.

Although he suspected this was one of the Cadillac properties, Macdonald never said a word until he had persuaded Stewart to let him have a look at it, knowing that Andrew would not know whether he had bought a car or a mine even if he told him. It proved to be Thompson-Cadillac, then selling for 48¢.

Macdonald kept referring to it as Catholic, the old man wincing each time he said it; until he finally wore him down to a point he was glad to exchange his 5,000 shares for 5,000 shares of Macdonald's penny Quebec mining stock. Macdonald had three certificates, two of 2,000 and one of 1,000. He clipped the three together and put a note on it:

"Some day this will be worth $20."

Stewart forgot about the tin box in which he kept evidence of lack of sales resistance until one day he met the county reeve.

NOT INTERESTED

"You should have been in town today, Andrew," said Reeve Garnet Nesbitt. "Was the market ever going crazy?"

"No interest to me," said Stewart.

"Thought you bought stocks," said Nesbitt.

Stewart was somewhat annoyed. "If I had the $18,000 I have thrown away, I could sure do with some of it now with the price of farm produce the way it is."

"You know," continued Nesbitt, "with the subject still on his mind, 'there was one stock went from 12 cents to $20.'"

The $20 brought back Macdonald's notation to mind. (Poor Macdonald probably thought at the time by committing himself to the 5,000 shares total being worth $20 he was exaggerating.)

"What's the name?"

"Quemont."

"I think I have some of that."

"You're crazy."

HE WAS CRAZY?

But Stewart wasn't crazy. He got out the strong box and there were the 5,000 shares of Quemont on which Macdonald had thought he made a very astute trade.

The day Stewart went to town to cash in, the first person he went to see was Charles Smith, who had sent Macdonald to him.

"Know where Macdonald is these days?" he asked Charlie.

"No," replied Smith, smelling trouble.

When Stewart told him what he wanted Macdonald for, Charlie smelled something else: money of which he wanted a share. But Smith new his man and didn't rush things, using psychology on him he knew would work from past experience.

WANTED SHARE

For two days, the two of them went on a bender, Charlie telling Stewart that now he had made his fortune the proper place to keep it was the bank—not squander it on riotous living—that he should be home, and last, but not least, that this was wasting Smith's time because he wasn't making any money doing it.

Prehistoric Man - I Don't Believe It!

By T. W. PUE

MAN AN "EVOLUTURE"

I have been slugging through my copy of "Prehistoric Man," sent me by the Non-Fiction Book-of-the-Month Club. It is written by a professor of Natural History who professes to know that man started on his road to perfection some 40,000 years ago and is growing more perfect year by year.

According to this author, this was not the real beginning of man. Seems the ornery creature (not a good word—creature means created: better call him "evoluture" instead) took on man-like characteristics ages before in the form of a lemur. This is a new development from the theory that man came from monkeys.

T. W. Pue

The book reads like an imaginary account of a fairy tale, which is what I consider it to be. And I don't believe in Prehistoric Man.

THERE'S ANOTHER
EXPLANATION

I can't accept the theory that mankind is a product of evolution for several reasons. I believe that man was created, and as the record of creation, factually written, was made by a reputable writer 4,000 years ago you can't, therefore, say the creature was Prehistoric.

The Book of Genesis is part of the Mohammendan Koran, Jewish and Roman Catholic Bibles. Besides these three groups there are some 500 other divisions of Christianity—various sects loosely termed Protestants—who also accept Genesis as the Word of God.

And to me the explanation of the origin of man as given to the world by Moses some 2,000 years before Christ, is complete and acceptable.

FAILURE OF SCIENCE

The big mistake that scientists make is in attempting to prove the truths they dig up without allowing for at least one divine miracle.

That miracle is the origin of life.

What is life. A soldier runs across a field in the face of scattered rifle fire. A bullet strikes him in the temple. He falls down dead. Later, companions go out in the night and bring him back—body, bone, flesh, clothing and equipment.

He is all there—just as he was a few moments before being hit by the bullet. Yet there is one thing

REDEMPTION!

The upshot was that when Stewart was at the proper mellow level of Scotch whisky, he wrote Smith a cheque for $10,000 for which Charlie gave an I.O.U. on which he wrote: "To be redeemed in stock."

Some years went by and Stewart died. His heirs found this I.O.U. among his papers and Smith received a lawyer's letter.

At this particular time Eldona was selling for 28¢, but in 1945, even before it was listed, had between $4 and $5. Smith replied that he had redeemed the I.O.U. in 1945 for 2,500 shares of Eldona, which had been in safekeeping until surrender of the I.O.U., and furnished the lawyer with the certificate numbers (after, of course, purchasing and getting delivery of the certificates). He figured the $750 it cost him was cheaper in the long run than a court case.

Now Eldona, which has struck ore, is on the way up again, and it is possible that Stewart's heirs will get their $10,000 back.

So even after death, Stewart's sucker luck held good.

missing. It is the life he had. Where did it go? Without that life the soldier is useless. He is nothing.

Scientists can duplicate in a laboratory the chemical compositions of living things. But they cannot create living things because they cannot inject that unknown factor—life.

The point I want to make is this: Don't turn God out of your calculations unless you can prove, not the origin of man, but the origin of life.

I BELIEVE

I hold to the story of creation as given in Genesis because there is none better. When I accept the doctrine of an Almighty God, I have but one unsolved problem—the origin of God. But if I were to try to prove every miracle of life and the universe without God I would be in a difficult position indeed. I would be led into by-paths of indecision and frustration.

AN ANALOGY

I'd be like a man who, seeing the workings of a washing machine, light bulb, radio and electric iron and understanding their mechanical features, still tried to prove their working without accepting the miracle of electricity, simply because he can't prove the origin of electricity.

Like Divinity, I cannot understand electricity, why it exists or what it is made of. I know it runs along a certain wire, but if the wire is cut the "current" is gone and the wire still there is lifeless. All my theories about what makes an electric washing machine run are silly unless I accept electricity as a faith which I do not understand.

So it is with life. I can understand the explanation for many things only by accepting a principle for which I have no explanation. God is the explanation—I know he exists because he makes things work—but I can't explain his existence.

Two weeks ago I wrote an article describing my personal impressions of the Hutterites. A number of readers who live near Hutterite colonies (and therefore know the subject of my writings better than I do) have written some protestation. As far as I know, what I wrote was what I knew from first-hand enquiry and observation.

This is a free paper, published in a free country and anyone is free to express contrary views by simply writing a letter to the editor and giving us permission to publish it.

Hot Dog

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and he sold hot dogs, recounts George T. Trundle, Jr. He was hard of hearing, so he had no radio. He had trouble with his eyes, so he read no newspapers.

But he sold good hot dogs. He put signs up on the highway, telling how good they were. He stood on the side of the road and cried, "Buy a hot dog, mister?" And people bought. He increased his meat and bun orders. He bought a bigger stove, to take care of his trade.

He finally got his son home from college to help him. But then something happened. His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio? Haven't you been reading the newspapers? There's a big depression on. The European situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse. Everything's going to pot."

Whereupon the father thought: "Well, my son's been to college, he reads the papers and he listens to the radio, and he ought to know."

So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his advertising signs, and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son," the father said to the boy. "We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

Free Freight On Grain Proposed For Dry Areas

Extension of free-freight on shipments of seed and feed into the drought areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta was proposed in a communication to the Dominion Minister of Agriculture by the North-West Line Elevators Association, released recently. Since 1941 the Dominion Government has been paying freight from the head of the Great Lakes on grains shipped to Eastern feeders and freight from Alberta on grains shipped to British Columbia feeders. The cost to the Dominion Government has been $125,000,000.00.

The letter to the Dominion Government reads:

"The Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner,
 The Minister of Agriculture,
 Ottawa, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Gardiner:

"As you are aware, the shipment of large quantities of feed and seed grain into drought stricken areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta will be necessary this winter.

"Since 1941, the Dominion Government has been paying freight charges on grains shipped from the head of the Great Lakes to livestock and poultry feeders and dairy operators in Eastern Canada, and from Alberta points to British Columbia feeders. Recently this free freight was extended to the newly organized Province of Newfoundland.

"We strongly urge that this free freight policy be extended to seed and feed shipped into the drought areas of the Prairie Provinces. We consider that the farmers of Western Canada, and particularly those in the drought areas, are deserving of the same subsidies that are extended to feeders in other parts of Canada. It would permit the drought area farmers to retain their essential livestock, and to engage in feeding livestock and poultry for marketing, and to carry on dairy operations, at least, in even competition, as to costs, with farmers and feeders in other parts of Canada who are now favored with the freight subsidy.

"In view of the fact that this free freight subsidy was extended to Newfoundland, without reference to Parliament, we take it that the Government has equal power to extend this needed assistance to farmers in the drought areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta. We, therefore, urge that immediate action be taken in order to prevent drought area farmers of Western Canada from being forced to sacrifice their livestock, poultry and dairy herds.

Yours very truly,

CECIL LAMONT,
 President."

New Alberta Senator Is Man of the People

J. W. Stambaugh, President of the Alberta Liberal Association, was appointed to the Canadian Senate last week.

A man who has lived close to the soil all his life, and therefore close to the people of Alberta, Mr. Stambaugh is well equipped by background and experience to represent the people of Alberta in the senior legislative house in Ottawa.

EARLY RESIDENT BRUCE DISTRICT

John Wesley Stambaugh, 61, has been farmer and machine agent at Bruce, in the Edmonton area, for 4 years and head of the Alberta Liberal Association since 1945. His appointment to the senate completes the list of Alberta members of the upper chamber.

Other Alberta members are: Hon. James A. MacKinnon, Edmonton; Hon. Aristide Blais, formerly of Edmonton and now in Vancouver; Hon. W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge; Hon. F. W. Gershaw, Medicine Hat; Hon. G. H. Ross, Calgary.

Mr. Stambaugh was shingling the roof of a church at Bruce when informed Wednesday of his appointment. After receiving congratulations of his family and friends, he returned to his shingling job.

PARTY WORKER

Mr. Stambaugh has been active in Liberal party work for 38 years. He has held numerous offices in provincial and federal constituency associations.

He was born July 1, 1888, at Melvin, Mich., and received his education there. When 17, he came to Alberta and homesteaded near the present town of Bruce, 75 miles east of Edmonton.

J. W. STAMBAUGH

After farming for a few years, Mr. Stambaugh moved to Edmonton. In 1911 he was president of the North Edmonton Liberal Association and the same year headed the North Edmonton Civic Association. After living here three years, he returned to farming operations at Bruce.

Mr. Stambaugh recalls that he commenced homestead operations with a team of oxen which he bought in St. Albert. A wagon was purchased in Edmonton and the outfit covered the stretch to Bruce with Mr. Stambaugh at the controls.

In 1927 Mr. Stambaugh disposed of his original farm and the same year bought another near Bruce. Later he also engaged in private business in Bruce operating a machine agency in partnership with R. J. Wilson.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE

For many years Mr. Stambaugh has been a school trustee for the district. He first became a trustee in 1912. He has been a member of the Bruce school board for many years. When the larger unit known as Holden was organized he was a member of the first divisional board.

For some time he was a member of the Viking municipal hospital board.

Mr. Stambaugh was president of the Bruce Constituency provincial Liberal Association and the Camrose federal Liberal Association. In 1945, Mr. Stambaugh was elected president of the Alberta Liberal Association, which post he has since held. He succeeded H. J. Montgomery of Wetaskiwin.

In 1912 Mr. Stambaugh married Miss Amy E. Lake, of Edmonton. Their five children are sons Lyal, who is operating a farm; Kenneth who is a machinery agent; Donald, a garage operator; Jack, oil company agent; and one daughter, Evelyn, Mrs. C. E. Nolan, all at Bruce.

Bird Sees First-Hand South American Revolution

By JACK BIRD

(This is the final article of five in a series written especially for Community Publications of a 15,000 mile journey to the West Indies and South America).

Less than half-an-hour after crossing the equator we were in Belem, Brazil, my ultimate destination on the trip.

Brazil is so large that it is more than half the area of the whole continent. Indeed, the United States of Brazil are larger than the United States of America.

WEATHER HOT

Belem—also called Para, for it is on the Para River—is 100 miles south of the equator, yet the temperature next day was only 82 in the shade. But it was a different kind of 82 than you will find anywhere in Canada. At noon the sun was almost directly overhead; my shadow was only two feet long, and perspiration simply oozed out of me. I'd wipe my face and neck with a handkerchief, and almost right away it would be time to wipe again. If I leaned forward a miniature waterfall would drip off the end of my chin; I could feel it trickle down my chest and back; my shirt was wet and clung to me. By 4 o'clock, though, the day began to cool.

RECEPTION WARM

I returned to Venezuela, flying across the whole northern border. At the four cities I stopped, armed soldiers were everywhere, for the country was in the throes of a revolution. At one air port they even had men and a machine gun dug in right by the landing strip where we stopped. But I saw no violence, for the army took over without firing a shot.

Then I flew to Barranquilla, in the Republic of Columbia. Here the temperature was 87, and dropped only two degrees during the night, with no cool breeze; so that, as in Brazil, I perspired freely, and could not sleep, but lay there all night long watching the bats, like little black shadows, flit in and out of my screenless window.

My last view of South America was when I looked over my left shoulder, through the port hole of our Convair 240, and saw way back and below, the flat, blue, level country at the mouth of the Magdalena River, with grey storm clouds gathering with tropical swiftness.

Two-and-a-half hours later we landed on the 144-mile long mountainous island of Jamaica. It was good to be back in a country where they speak English, but better still was to be back in a place where the accept the money you have to spend. That was the bugbear on the whole tour, for although I had enough money, I didn't have enough of the most-needed kind of money, for it was Uncle Sam's dollars that was real legal tender in most of the places I visited.

RETURN TO CANADA

After 13 days in Jamaica, where I experienced the hottest weather on the whole tour—for it was 88 one day—I left at quarter to one in the afternoon, and was in Toronto, Ontario, at ten after nine at night of the same day; and we had spent an hour at Nassau, in the Bahamas, our only stop.

Our pilot told us that on the last stretch of our flight we were doing 300 miles an hour. We crossed the west end of Lake Ontario in 10 minutes.

And so I returned home, a few days later, from a trip that once more, for several months at least, had satisfied my longing for far away places.

Alice Joan Aull Bride In Late Summer Nuptials

Before an altar banked with white gladioli and carnations, Miss Alice Joan Aull, younger daughter of Mrs. A. M. Aull and the late Dr. Erastus Aull, exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Ian Hay, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hay of Irricana.

Rev. W. E. Askew performed the nuptial rites at the afternoon ceremony solemnized Saturday in St. Stephen's Anglican Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John Aull, wore a wedding gown of cream duchess satin. The fitted bodice featured a heart-shaped neckline and long lily-pointed sleeves while the bouffant skirt was trimmed with appliqued roses of self material. Her bridal veil of French illusion, which had been worn by the bridegroom's mother on her wedding day, cascaded from a coronet of French lace. Her bouquet was of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. John Aull, and the bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Margach, wore formal taffeta frocks of sky blue and mauve respectively. Complementing their gowns were matching halo hats and colonial bouquets of pink roses and sweet peas.

Mr. Nell Hay was best man and ushering the guests to their places were Mr. Stuart Aull and Mr. Henry Ernest. Mr. Bruce Gore Barrow played the nuptial music.

The Blue room at the Palliser hotel was the setting for the reception where the mothers of the bridal couple assisted them in receiving their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay left on a wedding trip by motor for British Columbia by way of the United States after which they will make their home in Calgary. For her going-away ensemble the bride donned a coral gabardine suit with a navy top coat and matching accessories complemented by a corsage of gardenias.

Heads Bent Low

A stooped old man and a young man

Chanced to meet one day;
The young man said to the elder,
In his usual braggart way;
"Why don't you walk up straight like me?"

"That's no way to grow old;
It's all a form of habit;
At least, that's what I'm told."

The old man gave him a knowing look,

And said, "My dear young friend,
Have you ever examined your wheat field,

And noticed the heads that bend?
If not, just look them over

As the harvest-time draws nigh.
You'll find the heads that are empty

Are standing tall and high.
But the heads that count in the harvest

Are filled and bending low,
Awaiting the reaper's sickle,
Their time is short, they know."

And as the young man passed on by,

He slowly bowed his head;
No doubt he pondered many a day

On the things that old man said.

2. Permit him to choose his own company without restraint or direction.

3. Give him a lackey, and allow him to return home at any hour of the night.

4. Make no inquiry as to where and with whom he spends his leisure hours.

5. Give him to understand that manners make a good substitute for morals.

6. Let him expect pay for every act of helpfulness.

2. Make him responsible for the performances of a limited number of daily duties.

3. Never punish him in anger.

4. Do not ridicule his conceits, but rather talk frankly on matters in which he is interested.

5. Let him invite his friends to your home and table.

6. Be careful to impress upon his mind that making character is more important than making money.

Essay Contest Worth $1,000

Indian and white pupils in Alberta schools from grades nine to 12 will compete this autumn for prizes totalling over $1,000, in an essay contest sponsored by the Alberta Tuberculosis Association, it was announced recently by C. Robert Dickey, general secretary of the association.

Subject of the essays will be "How we fight Public Health Enemy number one—tuberculosis." Judges will be Dr. W. H. Swift, deputy minister of education, Dr. A. H. Baker, director of the tuberculosis division, department of health, and E. C. Ansley, general secretary of the Alberta Teachers' Association.

Mr. Dickey said that classes, not individual pupils, would participate and prepare essays. Prizes will be awarded to winning classes and schools, and will include radio sets, record players, combination radio and record-playing machines, sports equipment, encyclopedias and others.

Purpose of the contest is to spread more information about tuberculosis among the young people and their parents. The Republican "Grand Old Party" has been out of power in the United States for 17 years and cannot elect a president for at least three more years. It is almost certain that Thomas E. Dewey, who was so certain of winning last year will not be permitted to run again. He thought he couldn't lose last fall—and never took defeat into his calculations, which were badly estimated. The "underdog" fighter—Harry Truman—is looking forward to prospects for a third term starting in 1952.

Safety First Taught By Toy

LONDON. — A novel Safety First toy attracted much attention at the recent opening in Birmingham of the toy display organized by the Toy Fair Association of Great Britain. It consisted of a 40-foot model village, an electrically-driven car and two small dummy children, one of whom crosses the road while the other hesitates and is knocked down.

Both car and children are directed by remote control and local authorities are to order collapsible versions of the model for Safety First demonstrations at schools. The toy is expected to have considerable overseas demand.

World in Review

Bonn, Germany—New German Republic of the West came into being with meeting of Parliament under Chancellor-designate Conrad Adenauer.

St. John, N.B.—Harnessing of the fast-moving tides of Passamaquoddy Bay for power, perennial proposal from the Maritimes, is again being revived. It is being fought by some of the fishing interests, led by Senator Alexander Neil McLean, owner of the British Empire's largest sardine canner, Connors Bros., Ltd.

Mexico City—Finance Minister Ramon Beteta, investigating silver smugglers, found that apparently Banco de Comercio, Mexico's largest banking house, was involved. Bank President Anibal de Iturbe informed him his chief of exchange had been enriching the bank by illegal means without his knowledge.

Brazil—Work has started on the Paulo Afonso Falls power project, expected to cost twenty million, be finished in 1953, and produce 120,000 kilowatts after installation of first generators.

Sofia—The Cominform met to consider what to do with Tito.

Czechoslovakia—The government has taken action to stamp out the pin-up girl and substitute in its place pictures of workers.

Finland—Russian-inspired, a strike of metal workers was said by Finland to be aimed at delaying delivery of Finnish reparations so an excuse might be provided for the Soviet to "intervene" under terms of the peace treaty.

Camden, N.J.—Death toll of 18 was taken by a gunman who suddenly appeared to lose his mind and shot up the community.

Berlin—Russia was rumored to be willing to make new proposals to the Western Powers to settle differences in Germany. Western diplomats described the rumors as a trial balloon.

Dever—With an Egyptian relay team joining the parade of successful swimmers of the English Channel, the French-English crossing was becoming so popular English cartoonists were suggesting installation of a traffic cop.

London—Britain's nationalized transport system showed a deficit of $18,921,296 in its first year of operation.

This System outlived the TOTAL lives of four other makes

A totally independent testing organization put five makes of shallow well water systems through severe breakdown runs. The Fairbanks-Morse unit outlasted not only the four others individually, but actually the total of the other four combined.

FAIRBANKS-MORSE SHALLOW WELL WATER SYSTEMS

For lifts of 22 feet or less

SELF-OILING • DOUBLE-ACTING • SELF-PRIMING

A water supply system is an important investment, both in dollars and in the service which you should get from it. You want to get the full supply of water you need, and to have it for as many years as possible without breakdown. Every Fairbanks-Morse unit carries a tag showing, not just the rated capacity, but the actual delivery of water to the tank, certified by an independent laboratory.

The unit illustrated supplies 250 gallons per hour, but larger sizes are available delivering up to 580 gallons.

EXCLUSIVE HARDENED CRANKSHAFT

The hardened and precision-ground crankshaft, running in two large bearings is another of the important reasons for efficient, smooth operation and prolonged life.

HIGH EFFICIENCY, TOO

This compact water system pumps both on the forward and the backward strokes of the piston assuring smoothness and equalizing the load on the motor. This gives still greater efficiency and longer life.

Wear-Ever Social Evenings

BEISEKER. — Mrs. Brosteau set the ball rolling when a few weeks ago she acted as hostess for a Wear-Ever brush demonstration. Since then there has been quite a flurry of similar evenings.

Among those entertaining for such occasions have been Mrs. A. Scheffelman last Saturday and Mrs. Oswald Ternes on Sunday evening.

3 Hurt in Accident

ROCKYFORD. — J. Stinn, C. Merkel and H. Stinn were slightly injured when the car they were riding in overturned Thursday evening.

East Community Red Cross Holds Meeting

CROSSFIELD. — The Crossfield East Community Red Cross met at the home of Mrs. Clarence Richardson the first Wednesday of the month.

With the demonstration of cake decorating by Mrs. Frank Laut and an interesting talk by Miss Marjorie Metheral who has been a missionary in the Belgian Congo in Africa, the group spent a delightful afternoon.

The hostess served a tasty lunch to approximately 50 guests and members present.

Egg Shortage

CROSSFIELD. — A five-month old pullet belonging to Alice Stone heard that eggs were scarce, so she decided to do something about it. In her excitement she combined all her efforts and produced a triple yolked egg. That's what we call 3-in-1.
